Introduction to Trishuli River Rafting

Trishuli River, located in the central part of Nepal, is one of the most popular destinations for white water rafting in Nepal. Known for its thrilling rapids and scenic beauty, it offers an exciting adventure for both beginners and seasoned rafting enthusiasts. The river features rapids ranging from Class II to Class IV, making it a perfect spot for an unforgettable rafting experience in Nepal. Whether you are looking for a thrilling ride through wild waters or a peaceful float surrounded by stunning landscapes, Trishuli River is an ideal choice.

Why Choose Trishuli River for Rafting?

Trishuli River stands out as one of the best rivers for rafting in Nepal due to its accessibility, varied rapids, and breathtaking views of the Himalayan scenery. Situated just a few hours' drive from Kathmandu, it offers the perfect option for those seeking a short but thrilling rafting trip. Besides the excitement of navigating the rapids, you'll also be able to enjoy tranquil moments as you float past forests, terraced fields, and the occasional wildlife sighting such as monkeys and birds. For these reasons, Trishuli River is considered one of the top rafting destinations in Nepal.

The Best Time for Trishuli River Rafting

The best time for Trishuli River rafting is during the dry seasons, typically from September to December and March to May. During these months, the river offers optimal water levels for rafting—perfect for an adrenaline-pumping adventure. The weather is also pleasant, making it a great time for outdoor activities. Although Trishuli is open year-round, the river can be too low in the monsoon season (June to August), limiting the thrill of the rapids.
